Records Hamagement Survey Report of the Office of the Director 20 May 1950

I. PURINGE

To study the efficiency of the records systems and the smil and file activities of the Executive Registry.

LI. DACKTENNED AND APPROACH

25X1A9a

At the request of the Empertive Officer, DCI, a survey was storted on 25 March 1958. The Empertive Registry was assigned to conduct the study which began in Essentive Registry and extended to all components of DCI served by the Registry.

III. PACES

The mail hendling and file systems of the Assertive Registry have developed over the years as an outgrowth of the various requirements placed on them from the components they serve. This growth of systems has been without benefit of an approved policy or plan and operates with such flamibility that extensive on-the-job training for new engloyees is necessary before they are competent in each of the many tasks. Certain tasks are overlapping within the Registry as well as in the offices served by them. Also the high rate of turnover in employees creates a hasdahip in maintaining a well trained staff. Offices in general were complimentary of the Registry for the service received. However, there was some criticism concerning the dispatch of mail.

IV. CONCIUSION

That tasks performed by Executive Registry should be stresslined and medernized and that planned systems and procedures, developed as an approved policy, would improve efficiency.
